DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1,3-7,42 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dowling (6,888,322) and further in view of Scheinberg (6,030,088).
3. Dowling discloses a housing for enclosing various internal components associated with the operation of the computing device (202); and an indicator assembly for indicating events associated with the computing device (204), the indicator assembly being configured to produce an indicator image at a specific portion of an outer surface of the housing when activated (col. 3 lines 45-49, "some portion" is considered to anticipate "a specific portion" since the term "some portion" does not encompass the entire housing), and to eliminate the indicator image from the outer surface of the housing when deactivated (inherent, since when the computer is turned off the indicator image is deactivated or when a event is no longer initialized (not receiving e-mail or having read the e-mail, the indicator image is deactivated), the indicator assembly including at least one light source capable of emitting light(204). Although Dowling discloses the housing being used as a light guide to transmit light from the indicator assembly 204 to the rest of the housing (col. 3 lines 21-29) Dowling does not disclose a light guide for directing light emitted from the at least one light source. Scheinburg discloses a computer housing using a light source and light guide/pipe connected to the light source to transmit light from the light source to a specific area of the computer housing in order to illuminate the specific area including a cutout portion (figs 1-2). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the device of Dowling to include a light guide attached to the light source/indicator assembly of Dowling for the purpose of providing Dowling with a means of illuminating the housing at a desired area as taught by Scheinburg. One would have been motivated to modify Dowling with a light guide as taught by Scheinburg for the purpose of illuminating an area of the housing a distance away from the indicator assembly.

- Wherein the light source includes an LED or a group of LEDs (Dowling);
- The light source includes a red, green, blue and white LED, the colored LEDs performing color mixing in order to affect the color of the indicator image (Dowling).
- The light is made incident on a translucent portion of the housing, the translucent portion transmitting light without permitting objects disposed behind it from being distinctly seen (Dowling, col. 3 lines 21-29)
- Scheinburg discloses a masking portion (56) wherein the indicator assembly (light source) further includes a mask (54) that blocks light from illuminating all but the part of a specific portion of the housing desired to be illuminated. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to implement the masking portion of Scheinburg in the device Dowling for the purpose of facilitating Dowling with means for illuminating a specific portion of the housing.

- The light source is a remote light source (Dowling, Scheinburg)

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claim 37-41 are allowed.

5. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the cited art of record does not teach the feature of claim 37 in particular the light guide directing light emitted from the light source so as to illuminate a small portion of the housing component in order to create a shaped indicator image at the extended outer surface of the housing, the area of the shaped indicator image being substantially smaller than the area of the extended surface.
